TAX REVISION BILL COMPLETED

Excess Profits Repeal Will Not Begin Until January 1, 1922

Surtaxes Also Hold Till Next Year—Measure Cuts Levy $350,000,000

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—The administration tax revision bill was laid before the house of representatives yesterday after the republican membership of that body in conference and changed it so as to make repeal of the excess profits tax and the income surtax rates in excess of 32 per cent, effective next Jan. 1 instead of last Jan. 1.

This change on the basis of previous treasury estimates would result in the corporations and individuals with large incomes paying to the government in the next calendar year something like $200,000,000 more than they would have paid had the administration plan of making the repeals retroactive prevailed.

Total tax reductions for this fiscal year under the bill as revised were estimated by some majority members of the ways and means committee at $350,000,000 as against approximately $250,000,000 planned by committee republicans and the total tax yield at about $3,200,000,000.

As a result of the changes made by the republican conference, majority committee members amended the bill before its presentation in the house so as to make the corporation income tax 15 1/2 per cent, after next Jan. 1, instead of 15 per cent, as originally planned, and the manufacturers' tax on cereal beverages six cents a gallon instead of 12 cents.

Under plans adopted by the party conference, the bill will be taken up in the house at 11 a. m. Wednesday under a special rule calling for a final vote at 3 p. m. Saturday. Two days will be given over to general debate and two days to consideration of amendments under the five-minute rule, with amendments of committee members given preference.

Democratic members of the house plan to hold a caucus today to decide upon a source of action while the measure is under consideration leading the fight to reject the plan for retroactive repeal of the excess profits and higher income surtax rates, which was agreed upon at the White House tax conference last Tuesday.

Representative Frear, of Wisconsin, a member of the ways and means committee, was understood to have insisted that the house pass on the effective date of the repeals, but the conference finally adopted 96 to 62, a motion by Representative Mann, of Illinois, that the repeal date be next Jan. 1.

These changes correlated with those delay until next Jan. 1, in the proposed increase of 5 per cent, in corporation income taxes.

The tax measure as presented in the house is entitled "a bill to reduce and equalize taxation, to amend and simplify the revenue act of 1918, and for other purposes." Much of its 16,000 odd words of text is devoted to amendments of the administrative and definite sections of the present laws which were drafted by treasury experts with a view to clarifying specific portions of the 1918 act and meeting situations arising from decisions of the supreme court.

Transportation Taxes
Aside from the revision of the levy sections already referred to, the bill proposes repeal of all of the transportation taxes, effective next Jan. 1, increased exemptions to heads of families and married men having incomes of less than $5000, decreases in the levies on candy, sporting goods, furs and amusements, the substitution of manufacturers' taxes for the so-called nuisance and luxury levies and other changes, details of which have been in previous Associated Press despatches.

Additional revision include exemption from taxation of the salaries of the president of the supreme and inferior federal courts and also amounts received by individuals as compensation (family allotments and allowances under provisions of the war risk insurance and vocational rehabilitation acts.

Life Insurance
A change also is made in life insurance company taxation, the bill requiring them to pay the normal corporation tax in lieu of the levies on policies when written and all other present taxes except the corporation stock tax and certain stamp taxes.

Foreign-life insurance companies could pay on the net income from sources within the United States. Another important section of the new bill outlines a general plan to tax American concerns doing practically all of their business in foreign countries only on the income received from American sources. They now are taxed on their entire income, which, it is contended, places them at a disadvantage with competing foreign houses.

Personal service corporations, freed by the supreme court from corporation taxes, would be brought specifically under the corporation income tax by the bill and provision is made that if the partnership tax of the 1918 act on individual stockholders of such corporations would be declared invalid, there shall, in addition to all other taxes, be levied, collected and paid on the net income received during the calendar years 1915, 1919 and 1920, by every personal service corporation, a tax equal to the taxes imposed under the excess profits and income surtax provisions of the present law.

Exemption from taxation would be granted to farmers, co-operative purchasing organizations and selling organizations where the materials purchased are turned over to members of the organizations "at actual cost plus necessary expenses."

Distilled spirits diverted to beverage purposes or in the manufacture of any article intended for beverage use would be taxed at the rate of $4.20 a gallon, the tax to be paid by the persons responsible for such diversion.

Under an amendment to the estate tax sections of the present law amounts receivable as insurance upon the life of a non-resident decedent and any money deposited in any bank, banking institution or trust company in business in the United States at the time of his death would be exempt from taxation.

Amusement Tax
Other revisions provide that no amusement tax shall be levied on admissions; that the jewelers' tax of 5 per cent, on eye glasses and spectacles and the manufacturers' tax of 5 per cent, on portable electric fans, shall be repealed and that a tax of 10 per cent, shall be imposed on lenses for cameras weighing not more than 100 pounds.

Some of the new administrative features in the bill are designed to speed up settlement of claims involving back taxes, estimated to total $1,500,000,000. The time for determination and final assessment of any tax due under the new bill would be three years after the return was filed, instead of five as at present.

Provision also is made that no suit or proceedings for collection of taxes shall be begun after the expiration of five years after the date the return is filed. The bill also declares that if after a determination and assessment in any case the tax payer has without protest paid in whole or part any tax, and an agreement is made in writing between the tax payer and the commissioner of the treasury, the case shall not be reopened.

After an assessment is made and before final payment of the taxes due interest on the amount would be computed at the rate of 6 per cent, a year, instead of 1 per cent, a month, as at present.

Amendments to Income Tax
Among amendments to income tax provisions is one permitting, after Dec. 31, 1920, deduction of a net loss from net income of the succeeding taxable year. If the net loss is in excess of the net income for the next taxable year the bill provides that the amount of such excess shall be allowed as a deduction in computing net income for the taxable year following. Under the present law losses must be taken for the year in which a return is made.

Another amendment, drawn to meet a supreme court decision, provides specifically for the exemption of stock dividends from taxation, but says "a distribution made by a corporation to its shareholders or members shall be included in the gross income of the distributees as of the date when the cash or other property is unqualifiedly made subject to their demands."

Other changes set forth that the basis for determining the gain derived or loss sustained from a sale or other disposition of property of any kind, acquired after Feb. 23, 1913, shall be the cost of such property except that, in the case of property acquired by gift after Dec. 31, 1920, the basis shall be the same as that which it would have been in the hands of the donor or the last preceding owner by whom it was not acquired by gift, and in case of such property acquired by bequest, devise or inheritance, the basis would be the fair market price or value at the time of such acquisition.

In the case of the sale or other disposition of property acquired before March 1, 1913, the basis of ascertaining the gain derived or the loss sustained shall be the cost of the property or the inventory value, but, if the fair market value as of March 1, 1913, is in excess of such basis, the gain to be included in the gross income shall be the excess of the amount realized over the fair market price or value. If the fair market price or value as of March 1, 1913, is lower than such basis, the deductible loss is the excess of the

When Youth returns to Love he is shabby in raiment and in spirit and in body. He cringes in shame before her, but Love is not so easily won. In this one scene Barthelmess does the best bit of dramatic action this writer has ever seen on the screen.

And this is taking into account "Broken Blossoms," "The Idol Dancer" and "Way Down East," other films in which Barthelmess won a wide following.

The story interest in such an allegory as "Experience" is, perforce, meager because there is no anticipation of the end. However, the play was directed in a masterly manner by George Fitzmaurice and the photography of Arthur Miller approaches perfection.

P. S.—Marjorie Dow is lovely as fair market price or value as of March 1, 1913, over the amount realized.

Democrats to Act
WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The attitude of the democratic minority of the house toward the administration tax revision bill, which was introduced yesterday, was to be determined today at a party caucus. Decision to have the democrats on the ways and means committee file a minority report on the measure was forecast by some leaders.

$600 PENSION FOR SLAIN OFFICER'S WIDOW
BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Councillor James T. Moriarty announced to the city council yesterday that he will introduce an order into the council at its next meeting requesting that every license issued for the sale of firearms in this city be revocable.

His announcement came after a heated attack on the council for granting permits to pawnbrokers, and he headed the murder of Patrolman Andrew R. Cuneo on Hanover street Saturday as a direct result of such license. Before he made his speech the council voted a $600 annuity to the widow of the dead officer on Councilor Collins' order.

Moriarty's attack resulted from the petition of H. Angus Connor, 35 Massachusetts avenue, who wishes a license to sell firearms and ammunition. His petition was laid on the table, and Moriarty delivered his address.

"What do they care about death, about the wife and nine children that are left fatherless tonight as long as they get their dollars for their firearms?" he inquired while speaking about the pawnbrokers who are licensed to sell firearms.

"I think it's a lesson for every man holding public office to be a little more careful in what he hands out to the people. Every pawnbroker is an irresponsible person to sell firearms. I think we ought to start now and correct this situation, and I believe we ought to turn this one down."

Permission to circulate a subscription paper among men of the Boston police force for the relief of the family of the late Patrolman Cuneo and a general order of sympathy and praise were issued by Police Commissioner Curtis yesterday.

Acting upon the permission granted by the commissioner, collections will be taken in each of the 25 divisions of the police department.

Italian and other residents of the North End have formed the Andrew R. Cuneo Relief association and last night $250 had been subscribed.

The funeral will take place from

Officer Cuneo's late home, 4 Everdeen street, tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock. There will be a requiem mass at St. Ann's church, Neponset, at 9 o'clock, and burial will take place at St. Michael's cemetery, Forest Hills.

TURKS MUST SEEK AID
Failure to do so Means Turks in Asia Will Share Same Fate as Turks in Europe

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 16.—Not only Turkey in Europe a thing of the past, but Turkey in Asia will share the same fate unless the Turks "pocket their national pride and allow foreigners to assist them in the work of reconstruction," Stephen Panaretoff, former Bulgarian minister to the United States, said in a lecture before the Institute of Politics at Williams college today. After tracing attempts made by the Turks themselves to bring about reforms, M. Panaretoff said:

"Whatever modifications may be made in the actually existing territorial arrangements of what was formerly called European Turkey, it is not to be presumed that Turkish authority will be re-established there. The subject of reform is, however, interesting in showing what efforts have been made to save the Turkish empire from decadence and how futile they have proved to be.

"In Asia Minor there is still quite a large area of territory left to the Turks where their authority will be maintained. In this territory there will be a considerable number of Christians who need to be protected against misrule and arbitrations and their civil and political interests safeguarded. Will the Turks be able to organize and conduct their government so as to satisfy the Christians by assuring to them equal rights and equal treatment? The past experience with Turkish promises does not inspire great hopes for the future.

"If the Turks, taught by the catastrophe that has befallen their empire, wish really to preserve within their power what is left of it, they should frankly and sincerely apply to Europe for help to reorganize. They should pocket their national pride and allow foreigners to assist them in the work of reconstruction. For them to imagine that they will be able to work out a Turkish civilization or a Turkish reformation on Pan-Islamic or Pan-Turanian principles is a delusion."

BITTEN BY DOG
